Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, arrived tonight with assurances that his state has no intention of seceding from the Union no matter what happens in Washington.

"That secession talk is just crazy talk," he said. "My commissioner of agriculture was just writing jokingly about us seceding. Why, we're the main part of the Union down there."

Governor Talmadge said President Roosevelt would be defeated in 1936, but he said he was not sure whether this would be accomplished by the republicans or a third party. "I think Roosevelt will be defeat

Cuba Will Not Bar Machado Candidates

HAVANA, May 17 .- (AP)-It was learned on good authority tonight that former President Gerardo Machado's liberal party is about to gain another step toward a political comeback through a change in tactics of the present government.

Instead of compiling a list of un-desirable Machado followers and bar-ring them from public office by de-cree, the government, it was asserted. will simply suggest that any citizen may bring charges against any an-nounced candidate. The case will be taken to court and if the complainant is able to prove that the defendant, by some act, rendered himself unfit for public of-fice, the candidate's name will be removed from the election lists.

A government decision to leave the matter to the individual citizen would mean an important victory for Machado's old party, which has come to life rapidly in recent months.

Two Charlotte firemen found the bodies together yesterday after the lake bottom had been dragged since Wednesday morning following the tragedy in which Harmon, Miss Savage and Johnnie Jones, Charlotte businessman, were drowned when their motorboat capsized suddenly Tuesday night while they were on a pleasure cruise on Lake Lure. Jones' body was recovered Thursday.

Miss Opal Barrow, 25, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barrow, of 1462 Lucile avenue, S. W., who was the only member of the party to reach shore safely, arrived in Atlanta yesterday and was confined to her bed. She swam to the bank alone after being thrown into the water and wandered about in the woods six hours before locating aid. She was suffering from nervous exhaustion.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

DIN WASHINGTON, May 17.—The annual dog days are upon congress. At this time of year, near the end of the session, both houses begin acting queerly. The natural processes will legislation give way to covert backstage bartering of bill for bill, amendment for amendment. Dire rumors and predictions fill the

in a confusing din. The only thing for a hopeful public to do is to close its eyes and ears and hope. Usually the originally planned course of legislation works out about 80 per cent as expected.

VERACITY This year things are a little crazier than usual. As an example, the rumor went around that Presi-dent Roosevelt would not bear down on democratic senators to support his veto of the inflationary Patman bill, thereby secretly inviting them to make it a law over his veto. This was somewhat angrily denied at the White House.

The fact of the matter seems to have been that some of Mr. Roosevelt's friends put out a feeler in the senate along that line, possibly without consulting him. The result was a flurry of confusion in which the touchy question of veracity became involved.

FISHING A better example may be found in what happened in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's fishing trip with con-

The White House announced emphatically that the bonus was not discussed, nor was any legislative business mentioned through-

Yet some of those who went along returned to the capitol and informed their republican pals private that Mr. Roosevelt had read portions of a proposed bonus message to them. They even went as far as to say republicans would have a hard time voting against the president in view of arguments he expected to make.

The publication of these reports aroused the White House to further emphatic denials. Again the question was who should be believed, if anyone,

The situation of the NRA bill is a case in point. Senators wrangled for months about it, refusing to agree on any-Their vehemence indicated some of them would rather lay down their lives than permit its continuance. Yet, a few days ago, the senate passed an authorization continuing it for 10 months without any discussion whatever and without a record vote.

Tricky administration leaders slipped out the word that the house would stand by President Roosevelt and continue it for two years. Thus, the issue would be put up to the senate again in a peculiar way, so the senate would have to give in eventually to the president for a two-year lease.

Then Administration Leader Pat Harrison arose and announced

he would not be a party to slipping anything like that over on the senate. Those behind Harrison insisted he may have had his fingers crossed at the time. But the point is the condition of Washington affairs is developing to a place where truth serum might be of use.

POLITICS One explanation for all this is that Washington has been teeming underneath with politics to an extent usually reserved for presidential campaign years. In fact, the campaign of 1936 has opened a year ahead of time.

Opposition tactics have tended lately to put and keep the New Deal on trial constantly, and the New Dealers are fighting back. The job against the administration is being done not only by the republicans but by such outstanding hecklers as Long, Coughlin, the American Liberty League, the Chamber of Commerce, etc.
Wise politicians in all camps believe the fever pitch is being reached too soon. Privately, they do not believe the opposition momentum can continue to grow for the next 16 months until

WRECKAGE Hidden away in the auto strike settlement are some provisions which virtually wreck the Auto Labor Board. The board chairman, Leo Wolman, has been vacationing out of town during the strike. In his absence, the Labor Department fixed up a settlement which may permit Mr. Wolman to take a permanent vacation.

Hereafter, grievances of discharged workmen will be settled directly between the employes and the companies. This takes away the main business of the board. Furthermore, the agreement says that seniority rules will also be agreed upon directly, without intervention by the board.

On top of this, A. F. of L. locals in several auto plants have served notice that, if the Wolman board tries to call an election mong the men to choose bargaining representatives, they will call their men out again.

That much is her own affair, but she doesn't stop there. You come out of the theater still enjoying the after-glow of pleasant notions and make some innocent remark in praise of the picture. If she threw ice water in your face, the effect would be much the same. Her remark and her tone mean that you are dumb and silly. But chiefly they mean that she is a superior person of such exquisite and exacting taste that scarcely anything is good enough to please her.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Foreigners, NEW YORK, May 17. — In fairness something should be said on behalf of the handsome European taxi-husband who hires out as spouse to this or that American female at the best available price, payable in cash, live stock, room and board, clothing and drams, as they have been doing for many years. With a fine American he man contempt for the professional marrying men from the other side of the water the citizens of this country never have paused to consider what a ghastv bore existence must be to a man who has to earn his living by acting as husband to a succession of American women who were silly enough to marry him for his title in the first place. Prince and duke and baron, they have their informal moments together sitting for prospects in restaugether sitting for prospects in restau-rants and salons of Paris and Lonrants and salons of Paris and London, when they let down their hair, so to speak, and talk shop.

At such times they must realize among themselves that their titles are more a confession than a boast and marvel at the blank stupidity of American women who place so great a price upon them. Living on the cuff, regarded with contempt by the humblest workmen of their native countries, without prestige, pride of money, their life is one of moochery more abject than that of the professional amateur of the lawn tennis tournaments, and the thought of their ancestry would be enough to give them

A lord may be a lord of a land in which anyone who has a pair of shoes and a vest embroidered with glass beads to wear on gala days is entitled to membership in the local nobility. The duke may have been mashing up the kitchen furniture to nobility. The duke may have been smashing up the kitchen furniture to make fuel for the fireplace in a moldy stone monstrosity called his castle, and the baron may be a gibbering bar-fly hooted through the streets of his old home town. Yet, for all this, American women not more than one generation removed from the sod hut and the red cloth on the kitchen table. and the red cloth on the kitchen table swoon in awe of them and eagerly engage them on a year-to-year basis without even an option of renewal.

Feeling.
So from the beginning of the ordeal the taxi-husband is played by a feeling of contempt for his bride, realizing that she should have been repelled rather than attracted by his title. He then begins to discover other reasons to loathe her. Editor's Note-In the absence of Ralph McGill, Jimmy Jones, of The Constitution sports staff, is contributing the sports column for today.

Mr. Tubby Walton, our stout restaurateur friend who does a bit of scouting for the Cincinnati Reds and sells bonds as a sideline, is thinking of preferring kidnaping charges against a fellow scout, Mr. Zinn Beck, who probes the hinterland in search of baseball talent for the Chattanooga and Washington ball clubs. Mr. Walton, when encountered yesterday, was in high dudgeon and all of his 300-odd pounds greatly exercised over what he terms an infringement on his territorial rights.

It happened like this: There was a young pitcher on the Marist College team named Allen Cook. Mr. Walton, it seems, had been eyeing young Cook covetously for some time and had been nursing him along with the full intent and purpose of eventually seeing the young man's name on a Cincinnati contract. Last Sunday, Mr. Walton invited Cook, who is finishing school this spring, to come out to Ponce de Leon park and pitch for his famous "Firecracker" team as a sort of initiation celebration before ushering him into the ranks of profession-

Mr. Walton took great pains with his protege. He got out on the mound himself and showed him a few fine points about pitching, how to follow through, how to stand on the rubber, how to come overhand with the ball, et cetera.

While all this was going on, a keen pair of eyes was watching the proceedings from the grandstand. They were the shrewd, observing eyes of Mr. Beck, the scout from Chattanooga, who had been viewing Mr. Walton's antics with great

His instructions finished, Mr. Walton waddled complacently to the dugout, secure in the knowledge that he had discovered a great pitcher in the making. But as Bobby Burns, the Scottish bard, informed us years ago, "the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a'gley.

Mr. Walton found this out to his great consternation when he discovered after the game that Mr. Beck already had signed Pitcher Cook to a Chattanooga con-

At the latest reports, Walton was trying to invoke the Mann act against Mr. Beck, having it interpreted so as to apply to

LOSE, YET GAIN.

Although our Crackers lost by a rather sizeable score to the Nashville Vols yesterday, due largely to Frank (Bad Boy) Brazill's pinch homer, the boys picked up a half game on Memphis, which did even worse by losing a double-header to the fast-traveling Pelicans of Larry Gilbert. There is always balm in Gilead and this time in Gilbert.

CAULIFLOWERS BLOOM AGAIN.

The other day we were talking with Billy Hooper, the urageous colored battler of bygone days in Atlanta, who is edited with having discovered the late Tiger Flowers, a more nous member of his race, about the fight game in Atlanta.

Billy, who still retains his love of the game, was standing around the ring down at Jay Jarvis' gymwatching some of Hugh Martin's fighters work and getting a whiff of the resin dust.

"What we needs most," said old Billy, "is some Atlanta is who can fight." And that, on the second thought is just in the ninth inning and aided his The other day we were talking with Billy Hooper, the courageous colored battler of bygone days in Atlanta, who is credited with having discovered the late Tiger Flowers, a more famous member of his race, about the fight game in Atlanta.

boys who can fight." And that, on the second thought, is just about the story of the moribund condition of the sport here.

Not since the days of Lou Silver, Jake Abel, Tim O'Dowd, Freddie Boorde, Eddie Hanlon, Flowers, et al has the city had any fighters to brag about.

And this decline of the local talent has forced the promoters to bring in "outside" fighters, who never seem to capture the public fancy as well as the home-town boys, no mat-

MR. MARTIN TRIES.

Hugh Martin, who last night made his first effort toward restoring interest in the sport, down at the Atlanta theater where the bespangled chorus queens once entertained the city's diversion seekers, deserves a great deal of credit for the courage of his convictions in attempting the revival. Perhaps Mr. Martin, a Columbus (Ga.) man and veteran promoter, will provide the panacea that is needed. Mr. Martin is no shoestring promoter and has gone at the business in a thoroughly high-class manner. He isn't trying to kid the public or himself. He is going on the assumption that class will bring them out. And Atlanta's history as a sports town is that class usually does. Maybe Mr. Martin, who has done most of his promoting in Florida, will recapture some of Atlanta's lost glory as a fight

THE DISCOVERY.

Billy Hooper likes to tell how he discovered Tiger Flowers when the latter was a stevedore down at Brunswick.

Billy went down there to fight an unnamed opponent. What he drew was Tiger Flowers and he was a tiger of ebon hue. He turned Old Billy every way but loose, as the saying goes, and he was glad to escape the maelstrom of gloves that the Tiger threw at him. On returning to Atlanta he reported to his boss, Walk

'You better go down there and git that boy, Mr. Walk; he shore is one fighter." And Billy exhibited two badly mangled ears and a lacerated lip, swollen to the size of a small cabbage, to prove his assertions.

MEXICO, D. F., May 17.—(P)—Without the loss of a set, the United States Davis cup team swept through its first two singles matches with Mexico today to take a commanding lead in the final tie of the North American zone competition.

Bryan Grant Jr., the diminutive Atlantan, easily defeated Esteban Reyes, third-ranking Mexican player, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, but J. Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal., was forced to give his best to defeat Daniel Hernandez, 18-year-old Mexican star, in three hard-fought sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, Budge and Gene Make will meet Unda and Llano in

The Atlanta midget played his usual soft-ball game, forcing his opponent into numerous errors or to make easy returns, which Grant drove accurately to the back corners of the court for points. Although he lost three games on his own service, Grant allowed Reyes to win only two consecutive games and that in the final set. Only three games went to deuce.

In contrast, Budge, who was considerably below the form he had shown here previously, encountered difficulty

erably below the form he had shown here previously, encountered difficulty in whipping his youthful opponent. Hernandez, considered the most promising of the Mexican players, fought hard for every point. He led 4-2 in the first set, had the second tied at three-all and the third at four-all when Budge finally began to make his backhand drives down the sidelines prove effective. The first game of the final set was deuced seven times before Hernandez passed Budge cleanly and then served an ace to win.

Chattahoochee and Wax Paper Company will break their tie when they meet at Krikwood this week. It should be a close context. Richardson, who is employed by Rich's here during the winter, is the first playing captain the Newark team has had since 1926. Bob Shawkey, the Newark manager and former Yankee pitcher, in making the announcement stated that he considered Richardson the brainiest player on his team and that he knew the op-posing hitters in the league better than his own pitchers. RADIUM GETS SHOOT.

The 1936 state shoot was awarded to Radium Springs, where it was staged in 1934. Bubber Alford was here in person to extend the invitation. The state association was glad to accept because Radium is one of the best spots on earth for any kind of event.

The state association went on record as being very appreciative of the skeet shooters. The latter species is bringing the shooting game back and the state association appreciate this fact.

For the benefit of the few who are not familiar with the story, here is a brief synopsis:

It deals with a period beginning in 1800. For the theft of a loaf of bread, Jean Valjean is sent to the galleys to serve five bitter years. At the end of his confinement, Jean Valjean emerges an altogether different person. His service of degrading toil has changed his belief in mankind.

With the possible exception of "Naughty Marietta," depending upon const taste, the Righto theater presents the most delightful musical show of the year in "My Heart is Calling," starring Jan Kiepura, hailed as the greatest tenor since Caruso. This may or may not prove true, but it sounded plenty swell to this reviewer. Haunting melody of the semi-classic mould abounds in a novel setting of seeking Foothold.

mould abounds in a novel setting of entrancing romance. Kiepura not only has a voice in a million, but is simply adorable, ladies, just as Kiepura. The theme song, "My Heart is Always Calling," stays with one even after the laughs from the comedy have been forgotten. Marta Eggerth, as the little stowaway who proves a happy mascot to a stranded opera company, is definitely charming.

An added delight is a bit of "Tosca," when the company forces itself upon the attention of a Monte Carlo director. It may be that your reporter is waxing romantic with the years, or maybe it's a new gadget in the sound production, but it seems that the music in this film is more alive than any of its predecessors, and one couldn't get a greater thrill across the footlights from living performers.

Don't think fhere's ever been more disgraceful guffawing than Leon Errol gêts in a comedy labeled "Perfectly Mismated." A Silly Symphony and newsreel complete a fine program.

Mr. Munson, the county coroner arrived, a smallish man, and an inefficient looking chap. But his looks belied him, for he fairly sprang to his job, he chose Barry's library for his headquarters and asked for a bridge table, which he placed in front of a large easy chair and then called his witnesses. Cox and Stone were allowed to remain in the room with him. Daniel Wayne was called first, and though in a nervons, worried state, he stood the ordeal well.

"You have, then, had two sons nurdered within a month?" Munson said, brutally, all a few preliminary questions.

Dan Wayne gave him a startled look, then drew himself together, sat up very straight, and replied. "Yes sent the Korowaro, or whatever it's called, and I have no interest in the mount of the bouse somewhere."

"I've thought little about the criminal," Dan said, slowly. "I've been wondering what possible motive could be back of the crimes. They seem utterly inexplicable to me—as if the work of a madman."

Dan Wayne stalked out, full of re-sentment. Finding Pat, he told him to go to the coroner, and added: "For "She's no spring chicken. When a woman quits dreamin' about her trousseau and starts dreamin' about the home she'll have, she won't see

"Yes, Inspector, that's true. And then, there's motive. Who in the world would wish harm to Samfari. As fine a young man as I've met anywhere of late. He was certainly Dan Wayne's son: he showed more and more of his father's traits all the time."

"Oh, not legally, of course. But Dan and I always do everything to gether, and we talked the matter over a good deal before we decided. Sometimes Barry used to say that he had two fathers, rather than a father and an uncle. I daresay young Samfari would have felt the same way about that had he lived longer, poor Lap."

"Perhaps not. It might have been here when this was the old inn, and maybe bricked-up and only lately opened again."

"Go to it, Mr. Stone, and luck with you."

"Thank you. I'll tell you this much. Cox. If you go to Barry's library and just sit and look around, you can't help seeing something, which, if not a clue to the secret entrance, at least starts you on a way to look."

The routine work of the police was going on. Cox's fingerprint men were taking impressions whenever they could find any, but so far had found none save those of the people in the house.

The meaning of the word "success" is not so clear as it might be. We may take it to mean "to obtain the object desired," as a dictionary says; but that is not the full meaning of the word in my mind.

To be truly successful, it seems to me, we must do things which make our lives worth while. We must add to human well being, so that it will not be just to say that we "might as well not have lived."

Life is a gift. Each person who reads these words has had years in our wondrous world, and is likely to have years more add to his knowledge.

I speak of living in a "wondrous world" even though I know that life presses hard upon many persons. It is all too true that there is much sorrow for which there is no good reason; and not all the ways of men are kind and just.

Some persons turn their minds so much toward the harsh things in life that they fail to see the beauty and romance which is all around themeven in a grain of sand or a blade of grass, if they learn what those things mean. Learning more and more about the sorrow in the world, they may make the mistake of saying that life is "not worth while."

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am writing to ask advice for a niece who has had a hard time in life. She has held the same position as stenographer for five years. First she married a man who was out of work for a long time and in consequence took to drink. Finally she divorced him and set out to support her five children. Later she married an old sweetheart of her aunt and set up housekeeping. The aunt moved in with her, took charge of everything, even the man's pay check. My niece has been cruelly abused and mistreated. Although they had a new baby my niece has left her husband and left the baby with him. He sends her no money and takes no responsibility for her whatever. She needs sound advice as to what to do. M. A. P.

has had one divorce and is taking first steps to secure another. There is a better way than running and the kindest advice an uncle can give his niece is to urge her to go back to her husband and then help her to get rid of the trouble maker who is breaking up the peace of her home. Left to themselves the average couple can work out of their difficulties but when third parties come in and make dissension, accommodation of the difficulties is not so easy.

A woman can get the divorce-habit and when she does every time her husband displeases her the first thought is access to the courts. But the divorce habit are seen and the first thought is access to the courts. But the divorce habit and when she does every time her husband displeases her the first thought is access to the courts. But

A woman can get the divorcehabit and when she does every time her husband displeases her the first thought is access to the courts. But divorce isn't a cure-all. It is not a sharp knife that cuts a marriage in two and leaves no scar. On the contrary it leaves jagged edges that are constant reminders of the old pain of separation. Especially is this true when there are children who belong to the father as well as to the mother. There is always some question up for settlement regarding them and their future. Oftener than other wise there are questions about money, alimony for the wife, support for the children, that are perennially irritating, and perplexing. It is seldom that a man is conscientious in doing what he agrees to do, or what the courts order him to do about the support of a divorced wife. In the natural order of events he gets married

House Refuses To Accept Amendments to Rum Tax Bill.

(A)—As the Florida house today was refusing to accept 23 changes which the senate made in its bill to tax and regulate sale of liquor through licensing private dealers, the senate passed, 22 to 8, a measure to allow counties to vote on whether they wanted liquor sold through a system of county dispensaries.

The house rejected all senate amendments to the liquor control bill including those to prohibit all sales on Sundays and within 200 feet of any church or school at all times. It asked the senate to recede from these amendments. The senate is expected to refuse to recede and the measure will go to a joint conference committee for solution of the differences.

It emerged from the committee for its last big congressional hurdle, the senate, very similar to the form in which it was recommended to congress four months ago today by President Roosevelt.

Ultimately the bill would levy pay roll tayes totaling nine per cent, esti-roll taxes totaling nine per cent, estimated to yield at least $2.783,200,000 annually for old-age pensions and unemployment insurance. Although other nations have enacted somewhat similar measures piece-meal, nowhere else has such a program been launched in a sincle step.

He seized an Arab brigand, raised him high above his head, and hurled him at his antagonists. Again, he picked up a black warrior and used his body as a flail, seeking to mow down those who opposed him. Slowly he gained ground toward one of the palisaded walls.

Bedlam reigned in the village. Among the closemassed fighters, excited dogs ran yelping and barking. Children and women on the outskirts of the melee shrieked encouragement to the men. Garetto and Nazir, from a safe distance, shouted threats and commands at the attackers.

Tarzan whirled suddenly and saw an opening in the confused circle; but as he started through a shifta aimed a blow at him with the butt of his rifle. When the ape-man stepped back to avoid it, he stumbled over a yelping cur-and went down beneath a dozen howling men!

Making Entries.

Making Entries.

The more one learns about the play of the cards at contract bridge, the more he realizes how very important it is to pay due attention to entries. Most of the fine plays which I discuss in this column from time to time would be impossible if the proper line of communications were not always open between two partners. Finesses, suit establishment, squeezes and almost every other department of the game leans heavily upon the right to lead, which no player er ever has without an entry to his hand.

It is just as important to prevent the opponents from making full use of their own available entry-cards as to make the most of your own entries. In today's hand, the old "second-hand low" rule is disregarded, in order to rob an opponent of an entry.

TOUR WORLD IN GEORGIA. | seems that when they approached

Names of places have always provided me with a good deal of amusement and pleasure. Half an hour with an atlas is enough to stimulate the imagination to great activity. Georgia seems to be particularly productive of auch names, which may be classified—if one took the time—into a great variety of subjects.

For example, there is no end of our inclusiveness when it comes to other geographic entities. The entire Mexican state of Sonora finds its counterpart in a Georgia town. All of Egypt is within our limits. Scotland is also found in Georgia and Ypsilanti is not confined to that pretty little place between Ann Arbor and Detroit. The classic cities of Athens and Rome are also within our borders and we even have Spartans native in our boundaries. Dakota, of course, brings the west to the south while eastern culture must certainly be found in Boston, Georgia.

Poetic names, too, abound in our state. It is always possible to pick these at random, and to pile up a considerable list of them. Rising Fawn, I am told, takes its name from the first sight that greeted the eyes of early explorers in Dade county. It
